Complication of Diseases Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mrs. Ben. Shetterly
Buchanan, Mich.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:"
"Dear Sir: From childhood I had been a great sufferer from scrofula, having a tumor on my left breast and another in my stomach. I was also afflicted with salt rheum. We spent much money for medical attendance and remedies, but all to no avail. Three years ago I commenced to run down. The trouble with my stomach would not allow me to eat and even milk distressed me very much. My right hand and arm became almost paralyzed, and my stomach difficulty was fast developing into

Serious Female Troubles.
I became very nervous and was subject to fainting spells. Dark spots appeared before my eyes. The doctors failed to help me. In the spring I read about the wonderful cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to give it a trial. After taking it a short time I commenced to feel better, my digestion improved, and the burning sensation in my stomach and bowels ceased. Shortly I was able to work about the house, standing on my feet considerably, something I had not done for months before. For two summers I have done

My Own Work Alone.
I shall continue taking Hood's Sarsaparilla as it is my cheapest and best friend. I am a farmer's wife, my place being about 120 acres. I think Hood's Vegetable Pills cannot be beaten. We have great faith in Hood's Sarsaparilla."

Alabama Supreme Court Decides a Case Important to Catholics.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 22.—Judge Head of the Alabama supreme court decided an interesting case. Sylvester Feodorazzi, a Catholic, died in Mobile some years ago, and bequeathed $2,000 to be expended in masses for his soul by St. Joseph's church.

His heirs contested the legality of the bequest. The chancery court of Mobile ruled against them and they appealed to the supreme court, which reversed the decision of the lower court, and held that the bequest was valid in that there was no living beneficiary of the trust intended to be created, the soul of a dead person could not be a beneficiary, being a nonentity in the contemplation of the law.

An Object Lesson in Economy.

It is recorded of the founder of Guy's hospital that he always dined alone, and that a soiled proof sheet or an old newspaper was his constant substitute for a tablecloth. One winter evening he was sitting in his room meditating over a handful of half lighted embers confined within a narrow brick stove, and without the luxury of a candle.

A person who came to inquire for him was introduced, and after the first greetings were over the visitor was requested to take a seat. Thereupon Mr. Guy lighted a farthing dip which lay on the table beside him and inquired the object of the gentleman's visit. "I have been told," said the latter, "that you, sir, are better versed in the prudent and necessary art of saving than any man now living. I therefore wait upon you for a lesson in frugality, an art in which I used to think I excelled, but I am told by all those who know you that you are greatly my superior."

"And is that all you came about?" asked Mr. Guy. "Why, then, we can talk the matter over in the dark." So saying, he, with great deliberation, extinguished his newly lighted farthing candle. Struck with this instance of economy, the visitor acknowledged himself vanquished and took his leave.—London Tit-Bits.

Addressing Envelopes.

A new notion somewhat in practice is to address and stamp envelopes on the back. With the address written across the folds it can readily be seen that any tampering with the contents of the envelope could be detected. Now, if like the electric buglar mat, which on being stepped upon not only sets all the bells in the house a-ringing, but also exposes the negative and takes a flashlight picture of the rascal, identity could also be coupled with knowledge in the case of the letter opener, absolute safety in the transmission of mail messages would be secured.—New York Times.

His Life a Failure.

He—No. I have spent half my life raising whippers to conceal my youth, and the other half dying them to conceal my age.—Pearson's Weekly.

New Theory of Aurora Light.

The latest theory concerning the cause of the aurora borealis has been deduced from a careful analysis of that light thrown through a spectroscope. This unique experiment clearly establishes the fact that it is caused by an electrical discharge among the particles of meteoric iron just contained in the atmosphere.—St. Louis Republic.

How to Cure a Felon.

If you have the appearance of a felon coming, put some hard warm water in an old tin cup, pour over them warm water immerse the end of the sore finger in the ashes, set the dish on some live coals or on the top of the stove, keeping the finger in as long as you can, and soak it several times a day. If taken in time, it generally cures a felon from coming, if the finger is wet with it often.—Good Housekeeping.

LIFE'S BITTER SWEET.

Tell me your boy, that I may tune my life To echo the glad music of your own. The changing melody, the sunny strife Of harmony blend in one full sweet tone. So shall the faithful shadow of my night Be lightened by your happy rays of delight.

Tell me your sorrow, that I may disdain Mirth and rejoicing, banish all relief. Save the sad destiny, the cruel pain Of being one with you, dear heart, in grief. You did deny me love. Have you no woe, No pain, to share with one who loves you so?—London World.

Barrie E. Hall, of Waynesville, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nerine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, indigestion, nervous prostration and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors with no result. The first bottle of the Nerine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I cannot recommend it too highly." Sold by D. J. Humphrey, Napoleon, O.

Won His Cabin Boy at a Raffle.

Captain Barratt of the American bark Carrie Winslow has on board one of the strangest prizes ever captured in a raffle. It is nothing less than a boy, a swarthy young Argentine, Juan Baptiste by name, whom the captain won in a raffle at Buenos Ayres.

Juan is only 7 years old and was an inmate of a Spanish orphan asylum at Buenos Ayres when the Winslow reached there on her last voyage. Juan desired his liberty, but under the laws of the Argentine Republic that could only be secured by the payment of a cash sum that would go to a fund for the protection of persons taking out the orphans and then treating them badly. In Juan's case the amount required was $48, and in order to secure this the enterprising boy decided to put himself up in a raffle and sell the tickets himself. Captain Barratt became interested in the boy to the extent of $5 spent for tickets, and when the drawing was announced was somewhat surprised to find himself the winner.

The youthful prize has been installed on the Winslow as cabin boy, and though he has now been away from his native land several months shows no desire to return to it. He is bright and intelligent, and as he evinces a decided disinclination to associate with the crew Captain Barratt treats him as one of his own family.—Philadelphia Record.
